GEOCACHING: A MODERN DAY TREASURE HUNT

Come learn about “geocaching,” a modern day treasure hunt with over three million geocaches hidden across the world. We’ll show you how the game is played, understand the challenges involved, and hear about the geocaching community’s well-established environmental policies and activities. All ages are welcome, as geocaching is a family-friendly affair that provides a great way for parents to bond with their children in the great outdoors.

Steve and Jessica Godun are a father-daughter team who have been geocaching under the username “JessicasDaddy”. They are active geocachers with hundreds of finds and about a dozen hides to their credit. They are also the creators and caretakers of the official ten-cache geotrail at Plainsboro Preserve in Cranbury, NJ.
